ECLIPSED ALL OTHERS!

Chicago Day Proves the Biggest One of the Fair.

The People Come From Every Direction and the Crowd at the Gates Was Almost Endless.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—When the smoke had cleared away after the great Chicago fire twenty-two years ago today, nobody expected that such a city as now marks the site of old Fort Dearborn would be reared in its stead. Its growth has been in all respects phenomenal, and the enterprise of the Chicago citizens is proverbial. So when Chicago started out to secure the greatest prize of the nineteenth century—the World's Columbian exposition—all competition was mowed down, and congress set the official seal of the government on the project.

The opening of the fair, and subsequent big days have been occasions of rejoicings, and the people of the globe have proclaimed their approval by their attendance. When Chicago planned today's exercises and festivities the characteristic push and enterprise at once asserted itself and a special committee appointed by the council, assisted by world's fair officials, began the preliminary arrangements to make Chicago day the biggest of the exposition. After several weeks of work the program was arranged satisfactorily.

The day was a grand success. It was the banner event of the fair. Before the sun had peeped above the blue of Lake Michigan, people hurried to the different depots, to take trains to the White City. Down town business houses were locked up Saturday night and the keys hid until tomorrow. Merchants actuated by patriotic impulses purchased tickets for their employes, everybody was in holiday attire and Chicago was at her best.

It was 10 o'clock when the Chicago Hussars, under command of Captain Brand, entered the grounds at the west end of Midway. As the company made a tour of the grounds, Battery D, under the direction of Lieutenant Russell, was firing a salute over on the lake front. Flanking the grand basin and stationed on the peristyle, administration, manufacturer's and agriculture buildings, trumpeters in herald's uniform played a short fanfare of peace, and then in unison, splitting the air to the ends of the grounds, "Peace on earth, good will to men" was played. The combined bands, numbering several hundred musicians, played the air of "All nations." It was a grand spectacle.

The height of enthusiasm was reached, however, when a chorus of 2,000 voices, under the direction of Professor Tomlins, sung "The Star Spangled Banner." The refrain was taken up by 10,000 people, and as the singers executed the notes of the American hymn, the united bands swelled the volume to an extent rarely heard. Then the chorus sang soft southern airs, including "Dixie Land," "Maryland," and "Kentucky Home." "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," was then sung, and the united bands marched from the grand plaza to the west entrance of the administration building. Here the new Liberty bell was rung by Mayor Carter Harrison, in honor of the day. Eight hundred voices, directed by Professor Tomlins, sung "Die Waecht am Rhine," "Marseillaise," and other national airs, on a platform west of the administration building. The morning exercises were closed by an exhibition drill on the stock pavillion by the Chicago Hussars.

The court of honor presented an imposing scene. There was a grand reunion of states symbolic of the states which they represented. Chicago's guard of honor was comprised of youths representing the thirty-four wards of the city. Each bore a huge shield on which was inscribed the word "Welcome." Following them were thirteen pretty misses, representing the original states of the union. They carried state shields and olive branches, and each wore a crown which was surmounted by a large gilt star. Then followed the different states of the union. On the shields the men carried was the name and motto of the state and the day of its admission to the union. Flags, sheaves of wheat and flowers galore were carried by the children. The day's incidents were closed in effective style, and as night drew on the crowd was added to by late comers.

World's Fair Grounds, Oct. 9.—Never in the history of the fair were so many people together here as today. From early morning the crowds came in unbroken columns. A full force of men were stationed at the gates and thousands of the Chicago day crowd lined up at every entry. At the Sixty-third street entrance it was next to impossible to gain admission so dense was the crowd. It was the same story at most of the gates. The people came from every direction.

Thousands were compelled to sleep in stairways, restaurants and hotel offices. Rooms were impossible to secure and cots were at a premium. Trainloads of people were deposited down town and in the exposition district this morning. All had the same object in view and that was the White City.

The line of those seeking admission was endless. Luckily about half of the visitors had secured entrance tickets before hand and the crowd around the ticket offices was not so great as at the admission gates.

RUSSIAN JEWS.

Twenty-two Thousand Jews Ordered to Leave Their Homes October 13.

San Francisco, Oct. 9.—Father H. Grippin Honcharenko, a Russian exile known here as the patriot priest, is the principal authority for the statement that 22,000 Russian Jews, all men of wealth, have been exiled by the czar, and are coming to America, a large proportion of them intending to settle on the Pacific coast. He says the ukase will go into effect October 13, of our calendar. His information, he says, comes direct from Russia, and is authoritative. No news of it, he says, has yet reached London, Paris or New York. The ukase is aimed at the wealthiest class of Russian Jews.

No details of their coming are obtainable, but the report is credited here. Father Honcharenko is a well known and reputable resident of Haywards, Alameda county, and though not a Jew is in close connection and sympathy with Jewish and other exiles from Russia. What lends color to his statement is the fact that news of the same character, seemingly from an independent source, has reached other prominent Russian Jews in San Francisco.

PROVED TO BE LAMB.

Swindler De France Indentified at Detroit.

Mr. Newman's Partner Visits Him and Declares He is the Man Who Victimized the Chicago Attorney.

Detroit, Oct. 9.—The man who swindled Attorney Newman, of Chicago, out of $25,000 on April 17 last, and Stonewall J. DeFrance, locked up here for a number of crimes, are one and the same, the identification taking place at the Grand River avenue station Saturday. L. O. Levinson, a member of the firm of which Mr. Newman is the head, and R. G. Hall, the confidential man of the firm, arrived from Chicago this morning to get a glimpse of DeFrance and neither hesitated a moment in pronouncing him guilty of one of the most daring and extensive satchel tricks ever perpetrated in Chicago. Having been apprised of their coming, Superintendent Starkweather met them at the depot and the trio were at once driven to the outlying station, where DeFrance has been since his incarceration. The prisoner was asleep at the time, but the superintendent ordered him awakened, and when introduced to the Chicagoans he expressed pleasure at seeing them. He was as suave as though negotiating another real estate transaction and both recognized him at once. When told who they were he said that he did not remember ever having had the pleasure of meeting them before. He then entertained them for some time with stories and mimicry and laughed heartily when they recited the details of the swindle perpetrated on Newman. Mr. Levinson told him that he did not believe De France would be convicted of either the Perrion abduction or the St. Paul job, as he is too sleek for that. De France thanked them for their opinion.

Mr. Levinson repaired at once to a hotel, where he consented to tell the whole of the story of the swindle which is the greatest of the man's peculations so far reported. Under the name of Lamb he opened what was ostensibly a real estate and insurance office at Akron, Ohio, last March, placing money in all of the banks and the largest amount in the City National bank. He engaged in many deals and employed a prominent law firm to attend to his legal matters for him. On leaving Akron he asked for a letter to a prominent Chicago firm, and was given one to Newman & Northrup. The firms had exchanged business, and when Lamb arrived in Chicago on inauguration day Mr. Newman was cordial in greeting a man so highly recommended. He spoke very intelligently in the first interview, and seemed well posted on real estate laws, and left three drafts aggregating $2,500 with the firm. They were all good, and soon afterward he told Mr. Newman that he had decided to buy a piece of property for $10,000 in Lake county. The firm looked it up, and he came in one day saying he had closed the deal, and finding that there was more than enough to pay the attorney fees he left the city for a few days. On his return Lamb informed Mr. Newman that he was going to invest $29,000 in Waukegan property and had this locked up for him. He came in with a draft of $35,000 payable to himself, and stating that it was the last day of the option and that it could not get it cashed without identification, he asked Mr. Newman to accompany him to Schaffner's bank, which the latter did, and Lamb drew $25,000.

BROUGHT THE SATCHEL.

The question of how to carry the money came up and Lamb suggested a satchel suiting the word with the action and soon returned with one. Mr. Newman was to accompany him to Waukegan, and on the way back to the office he bumped into Mr. Newman's leg a couple of times, then suggested that he take the other side of him. A confederate changed satchels with him, and he asked Mr. Newman to take the satchel to his office, saying he would be there in time to take the train. This was the last seen of Lamb by the firm until today.

The police claim to be able to connect De France with Sophia Lyons, the most notorious female crook that ever infested the west, and promise to divulge some sensations when the trial comes up.

VIGILANT WON!

The American Too Much for the Englishman.

The Valkyrie Led at the Start, but Was Soon Headed.

There Seemed to be Wind Enough, and the Vigilant Won a Grander Victory Than on Saturday.

New York, Oct. 9.—A grey dawn this morning. Bay Ridge, the anchoring place of the Valkyrie and Vigilant, presented the same animated appearance as on Thursday and Saturday last at the same time of day. Two pretty racing craft, surrounded by a big fleet of pleasure vessels were preparing for another struggle for the America's cup.

The excursion steamers were loading up with human freight, beer, ice, luncheon and enthusiasm, for, be it known, there is as much interest taken in the yacht race today as there was in the first meeting of the rival beauties.

The public maintains its interest in the race which will definitely decide the relative merits of the Valkyrie and Vigilant. Behind the verdict of the experts looms up the fact that the Vigilant appears to be the fastest yacht of the two and that nobody hereabouts feels at all uneasy as to the result.

"The cup will stay here," is the popular verdict and it will take a good deal of hard sailing upon the part of the British challenger to upset that opinion. At this hour, 8 a. m., the yachting procession is commencing to head towards the lower bay. Fort Hamilton, the Navesink Highlands, Sandy Hook and other points of good view of the race are being peopled with the usual crowds of enthusiasts.

Sandy Hook, Oct. 9.—The Valkyrie in tow, passing out the Hook at 8 a. m. The Vigilant following.

9 a. m.—Both yachts in tow making for the Hook.

10.05 a. m.—Wind now about eighteen miles per hour; weather clear.

Highlands, 10 a. m.—Both boats dropped the tugs and are sailing.

10:35 a. m.—Far Rockaway wires at 10 a. m. that a heavy mist along the shores of Long Island and that the wind is only blowing six knots an hour.

10.40 a. m.—There is a light breeze and this is a Vigilant day. The fog is lifting and it will be a grand, clear day. The wind is about southwest and blowing seven knots. It was strong during the night, but cleared away soon after dawn. The wind has been gradually falling for two hours and the prospect of the racers being able with the light breeze to finish inside the time limit is not very encouraging.

Sandy Hook—10:30 a. m.—Both yachts near lightship; wind about sixteen miles, variable from south and west.

Rockaway.—The preparatory gun was fired at 11:15.

Highlands—11:22.—Both yachts are manouvering for position to the northward of the mark and heading for the mark. At 11:23 the Valkyrie slightly in the lead. Both carrying mainsail, forestay sail, jib and club topsail. They are away. Valkyrie crossed at 11:25, Vigilant about five seconds later.

At 11.27 the Vigilant had set her jib topsail and was closing upon the Valkyrie's nether quarter. The wind holds fresh and they are making good headway.

The Vigilant was trying to get up on the Britisher at 11:28, and at 11:32 the Valkyrie seemed to be opening up the gap. The wind was freshening slightly and it was evident the Vigilant will have all she can do to hold her own in this light blast.

At 11:40 a. m., the Valkyrie seems to be doing very well on the wind and was giving the Vigilant a good race at this stage of the contest. It was believed, however, that even if the Valkyrie turned the first mark first, that the Vigilant will be ahead at the second mark and at the finish. The second leg will be a dead run to leeward, and should be interesting to all concerned. Five minutes later the Vigilant seemed to drop the spurt; she made ahead, and the Valkyrie held her own. Not a steamer was to windward of the racers, and no complaint could be made by either of them, as the wind and weather at noon was southwest about twenty miles an hour, and freshening, with not much change in the positions of the yachts. Both yachts were still on the starboard tack, heading abot southeast at 12.07. The Vigilant was overhauling the Valkyrie. The stake boat for the first leg was off Seabright. As the breeze freshened the Vigilant crept upon her rival inch by inch. There appeared to be little difference in the positions of the yachts. At 12:10 the Vigilant sailed in the lead. At 12:20 the wind was strong and the Vigilant was gaining rapidly.

At 12:50 they were nearing the stake boat. The Valkyrie was fully a mile behind.

Navesink, Oct. 9.—1:09 p. m.—Vigilant rounded the stake boat and her spinnaker was furled.

Highlands, 1:12 p. m.—Valkyrie rounded the stake boat three minutes and fifteen seconds after the Vigilant.

Highlands, Oct. 9.—At 1:30 p. m. both yachts were standing east. Vigilant seemed to be increasing her lead.

Highland, Oct. 9.—1:57.—The Vigilant rounded the mark on the second leg, having covered the second third of the course in five minutes, and heading for home.

Navesink, Oct. 9.—At 2:25 the flagship May had gone ahead of the Vigilant to leeward and was running for the Sandy Hook lightship to anchor for the finish, which was only two miles further for the Vigilant. The Vigilant continues to run away from the challenger, which it seems now will be beaten by about twelve minutes.

CROSSED THE LINE.

Sandy Hook, 3:05 p. m.—The Vigilant crossed the line at 2:50.

The Valkyrie passed the line at 3:02½.

WILL BE A HOT ONE!

The Mayoralty Contest at Indianapolis Tomorrow.

Between Sullivan and Denny—Sim Coy, the Ex-Convict, Out for Councilman.

Indianapolis, Oct. 9.—The biennial election of mayor, police judge, city clerk and members of the common council will be held in this city tomorrow, and one of the hottest campaigns that has been known for years is in progress, for it is generally conceded that it is a neck-and-neck race between the two candidates for mayor, and this phase of the campaign is naturally absorbing attention to the exclusion of the issues involved in the selection for the minor offices.

The democrats have nominated Mayor Sullivan and the republicans have put forward the strongest man, confessedly in their party, ex-Mayor Denny. Four years ago the city passed to the control of the democrats by a majority of 1,100 for Sullivan, and two years later he was re-elected by 2,700, the majorities in both years being the largest ever given in a mayoralty election. The republicans had been in power continuously from 1875 to 1889, and the results of the two elections were regarded as vigorous protests against the extravagance of their administrations, for the money of the people had been expended from year to year and hardly a substantial public improvement had been undertaken. Neither in 1889 nor in 1891, however, was the republican candidate a representative in every sense of the city's interests, and party lines went to the winds and hundreds of republicans united with the democrats to secure a change and inaugurate better methods.

The campaign is being made chiefly by the republicans on the enforcement of the law against gambling and wide open saloons, and in this regard they seem to have placed the democrats in nearly the same attitude that the democrats placed them both in 1889 and 1891, an issue that has always exerted considerable influence in local campaigns, for each party has within it a peculiarly sensitive vote when this question is an issue and it is demonstrated that either has entered into alliance with the lawbreaking element. There is also some dissatisfaction with the board of public works appointed by the mayor because of the costly improvements that have been carried on under the present administration and property owners most affected by these are arrayed against the administration.

One of the peculiar phases of the campaign, and one out of which the republicans are making all possible capital, is the nomination by a democratic constituency of Sim Coy, the ex convict, in the Ninth ward for council. The democrats of the Ninth ward alone are responsible for his candidacy, but it nevertheless puts the whole party in an equivocal position, and the republicans are not slow to make capital out of the seeming inconsistency which gives color to their charge that Coy's name was used two years ago to drive votes to Sullivan.

From the present outlook the result is in doubt and the best informed men in both parties will not be surprised at a small majority either way, but all concede that the majority will be small. The democrats are in power and this counts for something in such a fight and their lines are being constantly strengthened by the influence which a republican victory would have on the county next year and perhaps on the result in the state. Party lines are being drawn more tightly and the election will likely be decided by a partisan vote.

BOMBARDED.

Insurgents Attack Argentine Forts.

Attempt to Capture a Powder Magazine, Which May be Blown Up—A Manifesto.

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 9.—The insurgent fleet again bombarded the outside forts today. There has also been some firing today on the other side of the bay, opposite the city. It is believed that the insurgents will make an attempt to capture the Estella powder magazine, but the government is determined to blow the magazine up if it seems likely that it is in danger of capture. There is no truth in the report that the foreign ships are landing sailors to protect foreign subjects. The insurgent, Admiral de Mello, has issued a manifesto in which he disclaims any intention of bombarding this city.

Nominated to Succeed Chipman.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 9.—The congressional convention of the first district today nominated Levi T. Griffith as a candidate to succeed Congressman J. Logan Chipman, deceased.

DROPPED DEAD.

Anna Bowles, an Old Colored Woman, Dies Suddenly.

Anna Bowles, colored, aged eighty years, dropped dead yesterday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. James Artis, on Dwenger avenue. Mrs. Bowles was a slave in early years and of late has been afflicted with dropsy. Coroner Harrod thought the circumstances surrounding the case warranted an investigation and held an inquest. It had been rumored that the old lady was abused by her daughter, but such was not the case. Old age caused her death as much as anything. The time of the funeral is not yet set.

HATHAWAY.

Sarah A. Hathaway, aged seventy-six, died this morning of dropsy at her home, No. 419 West Main street. The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Baptist church, Rev. Updike officiating.

A CLOSE CALL.

William Happ Falls From a Swiftly Moving Train.

A Sunday Runaway Causes Henry Danimeyer Serious Injury—A Bicycle Collision.

William Happ, a young man working on the Tenth ward sewer, and who boards at No. 5 Oliver street, met with an accident Saturday night which might have proven fatal. He has been in the habit of riding home from his work on a switch engine, and Saturday evening in attempting to alight from an engine near the coal docks, fell and had his left arm badly crushed. Dr. Kesler was called and reduced the fracture. Happ was also badly bruised about the body. He had a narrow escape.

Yesterday, while driving a fractious horse on Calhoun street, Henry Danimeyer met with a mishap. The animal started to run near Murray street and Mr. Danimeyer was thrown over the dashboard and badly hurt. Dr. George C. Stemen was called and found the injured man's arm broken in two places and his hip and leg bruised in a serious manner.

Prof. Rienzi Thomas, organist at the Second Presbyterian church, was out riding on his wheel Saturday afternoon and collided with terrific force with another rider coming in an opposite direction. Mr. Thomas received a dislocation of the right shoulder and is now confined to his room. Mr. Thomas' wheel was not damaged.

Saturday evening a desperate runaway occurred on Calhoun street. George Butler, a farmer, had his team hitched near the Nickel Plate depot. The animals became frightened at the cars and dashed up Calhoun street at a break-neck speed. Although the streets were crowded no one was hurt.

Bernard Nieman, son of the late Theodore Nieman of East Washington street, was kicked by a horse this morning and struck on the chest and on the knee cap. He was badly injured and his knee cap was broken.

This morning the twelve-year-old daughter of Joseph Taylor, of the east side, was badly bitten in the face by a vicious dog. Dr. Harrod attended.

VERY DULL

Is the News Found Around the Courts of the City.

The Voorhees Case in the Superior and the Pappe Case in the Circuit Court.

Justice Wilkinson fined Henry Colbert $1 and costs for assaulting August Home.

Wm. Leo and Arvilla Rhoades have been licensed to wed.

Justice Ryan is at Chicago this week attending the world's fair.

The case of Peter V. Voorhees vs. the Prudential Life Insurance company is on trial before Judge Alden, in the superior court.

The case of Wm. Bruns vs. Joseph France et al. has been appealed to the circuit court from Justice Ryan. J. E. Graham and C. H. Holder and W. C. Ryan are attorneys.

Circuit court did not convene until 1:30 o'clock this afternoon. Judge O'Rourke was on the bench, and Harry Metzger, chief deputy, was acting clerk in the absence of Frank Beloit, who is attending the world's fair this week. The case of the state against Pappe, for nuisance, is on trial.

Constables Skelley, Kramer and Hazzard Saturday night raided the mansion de joie of Tillie Inney, at No. 97 Pearl street, and placed under arrest seven girls and five men, all of whom paid when brought before Justice Ryan.

A noted land case from Superior, Wis., was decided against the Ewing estate by the United States circuit court of appeals at Chicago. The title to 113 acres of land valued at $500,000 and sold by the heirs of Madison Sweetser in 1883, was involved. The Sweetser title, which the Ewing heirs were attempting to defeat, was held good, and the decision of Justice Bunn, of Madison, Wis., affirmed. S. R. Alden, of this city, represented the Sweetser heirs.

In the case of the Courtland Forging company vs the first and second mortgage holders on the stock of Coombs & Co., Judge Dawson today foreclosed the mortgages in favor of the first mortgage holders.

United States Commissioner Leonard acquitted Jacob Bolinger of the charge of sending obscene literature through the mails. It could not be proven that he mailed the letters.

Judge O'Rourke heard the case of the Courtland Forging company against the first and second mortgage holders on the Coombs & Co. stock. The complainants asked that the entire transaction be set aside, and that the receiver be compelled to account for the goods sold. The real question at issue was whether a surviving partner can dispose of the assets of a firm without qualifying in accordance with the statutes. The court decided that the transaction is legal and the question will now be taken to the supreme court.

WANTED TO KILL.

The Police Called Out by a Drunken Man.

The Fellow Said He Would Kill a Whole Regiment of People—No One Was Hurt.

About noon today the police were called to No. 11 Lafayette street by the drunken ravings of a German named Schuster. The fellow was going to kill everyone in the neighborhood and then threatened to poison himself. At the station Schuster appeared tame enough and Lieutenant Lapp said. "Oh, he wouldn't hurt anyone, I know him. He was taking through his hat. He is a bad man in his own mind."

GREAT DAMAGE TO CROPS.

Millions of Bushels of Wheat Ruined by Bad Weather in Washington.

Spokane, Wash. Oct. 9.—Reports coming in show that about 3,000,000 bushels of wheat have been totally destroyed in this state, and that at least 3,000,000 bushels more will have to be graded down to about half price. The heavy rain for the past three days has in many sections knocked down the crop that remains uncut, and before it can be harvested it will sprout and be destroyed. In the northern part of the Big Bend country a heavy snow fell, destroying all crops not harvested.

Grain buyers say the damage to crops from the rain and snow will reach $2,500,000, but they estimate that shipment from that state will reach nearly 10,000,000 bushels, which is about the same as last year. In northern Idaho and Washington about four inches of snow has fallen.

LACK OF COAL

Causes England's Big Paper Mill to Close Its Doors.

London, Oct. 9.—One of the largest paper mills in the kingdom has closed its doors owing to a lack of coal and many of the other mills are upon the point of similar action. This would lead to a paper famine in the newspaper world, where the stocks of paper are being quietly exhausted.

There was rioting yesterday at the Burton On Trent collieries. Some striking miners attempted to prevent the despatch of several loads of coal dust to the pumping station. They overpowered the police and military and upset the wagons. The rioters were ultimately dispersed.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Fleck and Mrs. D. C. Gardner returned last Friday from a visit at the world's fair.

Louis Wolf has returned from New York city after an absence of ten days purchasing new goods.

FRENCHTOWN FRACAS.

A Dance Breaks Up in a Bloody Fight.

Revolvers, Knives and Brickbats Used With Effect—All the Participants in Police Court.

Because Charles Roemke and William Waltemath talked low German to Thresa Degitz at a Force street dance, Saturday night, and because Thresa could not understand the low German language, a bloody fight followed in which revolvers, dirk knives and brickbats took a prominent part. The dance was only a little "social affair" given at the residence of Charles Degitz, No. 137 Force street, Frenchtown. There were two four gallon kegs of beer and good cheer danced upon the froth of the foaming lager. The beer came first, then the dance, and at 11 o'clock when the caller cried out "all join hands and circle to the left" some one came running into the house and cried out to August Degitz that hoodlums were insulting his sister, Threse, in the front yard. 'Gust and Ed Carey, a Wabash company fireman, ran out into the dark and in a moment came running back into the house. Both were cut. 'Gust was bleeding like a stuck pig from a cut in the left arm and Carey's coat was slashed in the region of his heart. Mrs. Degitz and her son, Theodore, held the younger brother while the rest of the crowd poured out of the house and down the street after the assassins. The chase was brief and bloody. Roemke was felled to the ditch by a dozen bricks and left lying in an insensible condition. Waltemath ran across the fields, materially assisted in his flight by other bricks, one of which inflicted a cut on his cranium two inches long and one inch wide. The patrol wagon was called but friends of the fugitives had carried young Roemke off the field, leaving only his hat lying by a pool of fresh blood. The patrol returned to the station with the hat and yesterday afternoon and evening Officers Stoll and Knock worked up the case. As a result of their investigations Charles Roemke and William Waltemath were arrested at 10:15 and taken to the station and locked up. Roemke had a right eye which looked like a piece of tenderloin steak, freshly cut. Waltemath's head still showed the results of the fusillade of bricks.

About 12 o'clock the two officers captured Ed. Carey and August Degitz. They, too, showed the marks of recent battle. All four young men were locked up and this morning occupied the prisoners' bench at police court before Mayor Zollinger. The court room was crowded with young men from Frenchtown, many of the number present having been in attendance at the dance. Three of the number were picked out for witnesses. The charge lodged against Roemke and Waltemath was assault and battery. Both plead not guilty and stupidly gazed about them with real or feigned wonderment. Both stated that they were merely passing and spoke to the Degitz girl, who at once claimed that she had been insulted.

Other witnesses present said that Roemke and Waltemath had caught the girl by the arms and were pulling her through the fence. It was also stated that one of the young men had a revolver. Neither Carey or August Degitz could identify the two young men who cut them. In fact, Carey did not think either Roemke or Waltemath were the men, but as to this there can be no doubt.

After vainly endeavoring to get some definite information as to the cutting scrape, Mayor Zollinger gave it up as a bad job and continued the case until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, when the Degitz girl and other witnesses will be present.

All four prisoners were bound over in the sum of $50 and were released after furnishing the necessary bond.

A SMALL CROWD.

Sunday Base Ball Does Not Prove to be a Success.

The National League club, of Cleveland, owned and managed by G. Robison & Co., the street car men, arrived in this city yesterday morning and played a game of base ball with a picked nine known as the Lakeside club. The playing seemed to be all on one side, the score standing at the close of the ninth inning 15 to 1 in favor of the Cleveland club.

Mr. McDonald informs us that he lost $50 by the game and while we are sorry for him we hope it will teach him a lesson that the people of Fort Wayne do not want such kind of amusement on the Lord's day. If he wants to go into the base ball business he will find six other days better adapted and which will come up with the requirements of the laws of the state of Indiana.

KARL GARDNER

Will Be at the Temple Tonight—"Aristocracy" on Thursday.

"The Prize Winner" is the title of a new comedy-drama. Charles A. Gardner, the inimitable German dialect comedian and sweet singer, will produce it in this city at the Masonic Temple tonight with his new scenery and costumes and a company of talented actors. It is a play full of human interest, with realistic scenes and situations that are possible and natural. During the progress of the piece Mr. Gardner will sing seven new songs.

No drama written in recent years has aroused the literary and social discussion that has followed the production of Bronson Howard's new play, "Aristocracy," which is to be presented at the Masonic Temple Thursday night.

THE LUTHERANS.

They Continue the Sessions of the Grand Council.

The Adjournment May Not Occur Until Tomorrow or Next Day—Important Business Acted.

The services yesterday held in Trinity Evangelical Lutheran church were all very largely attended and were exceptionally interesting. At the morning service the Revs. S. Laird, of Philadelphia, and S. A. Repass, D. D., of Allentown, Pa., conducted the liturgical service, and the Rev. Carl A. Swenson, D. D., of Lindsborg, Kan., president of the general council, preached an able, eloquent and practical sermon on Rev. 12:11, presenting the need of the practical application of the teachings of the Lutheran church in carrying out the great works of the church. In the afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock, a Sunday school service was held, at which addresses were delivered by the Revs. H. N. Fegley, of Mechanicsburg, Pa., and H. M. Richards, D. D., of Allentown, Pa. At the young people's meeting in the evening addresses were delivered by the Revs. William Ashmead Schaeffer, of Philadelphia, and J. A. Kunkleman, D. D., Greenville, Pa. The evening service was devoted to the interests of the English home missions. The Rev. J. A. Kunkleman, D. D., delivered an address on the work of home missions of the general council, the Rev. James F. Beates, of Salt Lake City, on the council's operations in Utah, and the Rev. W. A. Passavant, jr., of Pittsburg, Pa., superintendent of home missions, on work in the large cities of the United States.

MORNING SESSION.

The morning session of the general council was opened with the regular morning service of the church book, conducted by Rev. F. A. Koehler, of Buffalo, N. Y.

The first item of business was the report of the committee on conference with the delegates of the Evangelical Lutheran Augsburg Synod, which was presented by the Rev. E. Belfour, of Pittsburg, Pa. The committee reported that they met with the representatives of this synod, who stated that there is a strong disposition on the part of their synod to seek union with this council and that they were present to learn more fully our position and conditions. The desired information was given, and they were informed that before any further steps could be taken, their synod would have to adopt the constitution and the fundamental principles of faith and church polity of this council.

The Rev. J. A. Kunkelman, D. D., of Greenville, Pa., presented the report of the committee on the organization of young people's societies, urging the organization of such societies in congregations with a view of forming a general organization and providing a model constitution for this purpose. The report was received for future consideration.

The Rev. W. A. Passavant, D. D., read the report of the directors of the Theological seminary at Chicago. According to this report the Chicago seminary is in a flourishing condition and that it is doing an important work for the general council. The seminary employed three professors and has thirty-one students and thirty-nine past graduate students. Since the last convention of the general council a professor's residence and a domitory for students were erected, and the institution is now prepared to carry on its work with better facilities than heretofore. The seminary is now permanently located on the north side, near Lake Michigan, and is open to all students of the Evangelical Lutheran church who, having the proper gift, give evidence of a Christian character and experience. The curriculum of the institution is a very comprehensive one, embracing eighteen different courses, and makes provision for a comprehensive post graduate course.

After the report had been received a lengthy paper was read by the English secretary, giving a comprehensive and detailed statement of the history of the seminary and the legislation of the council with reference to its establishment and government, and making a number of recommendations for its future operations.

THEY DID NOT COME.

The Sentinel's Timely Article Did Its Work Well.

Yesterday, while the authorities let the base ballists run things to suit themselves, The Sentinel's timely article in its Saturday's edition aroused the health officer and the crowd from Muncie were headed off. Had it not been for this word of warning there would have been many persons from that city here to see the base ball game, notwithstanding the statement of the health officer to the contrary, as Sunday a week ago the Muncie road brought into this city over 600 passengers, and we have it from good authority that over fifty of those passengers were from Muncie.

Saturday the night prints were defeated by the day types by a score of 37 to 11. It was a good game of ball.

Trade Maxiums Worth Remembering.

Success never results from the practice of selling the same article to two different customers at two different prices.

Quality should be the first consideration. It may be "smart" to palm off an inferior article at a high price upon the public, but it will not win on the home stretch.

The "Fearful Slaughters," which usually consists of selling leading articles less than they are worth and making up twice over, by the advanced prices on everything else in the store was a successful method twenty years ago but it doesn't work successfully in 1893.

The retail price of everything depends upon the price at which it can be bought at wholesale, and the rate of profit at which it can be sold. The price at wholesale is generally fixed by the reply to the question "How large a Purchase can you make?"

The price at retail is fixed by what the dealer finds affords him a living profit. If the purchase is large the price at wholesale is low. If the dealer's sales are large, his profits are small.

"Monopoly," in the retail business, is only an expression of the fact that one house can undersell another, and so ought to control the trade. It is the old rule of "the survival of the fittest."

"He who makes two blades of grass grow where but one grew before, is a public benefactor." Equally is he a benefactor who, by improved methods of business reduces the cost to the consumer of the manufactured goods he handles.

It was a wise man who said, "Leave nothing to what is called 'luck,' and you will generally be called 'lucky.'" Business merit makes success mathematically certain.

The one-price system means low prices, good goods and fair dealing. The two-price system means high prices, deceptive goods, sharp dealing. A two price store is a good place to avoid.

The city election at Indianapolis tomorrow will be one of the most exciting in its history.

The senate can't keep up with this fast age. It is too awful slow, and it allows the minority to rule.

The New York state democratic convention has demonstrated the fact that Dave Hill is still very much in politics in that state.

The yacht championship remains where it has been for almost half a century—with America. The victory of the Vigilant over the Valkyrie is another evidence of the superiority of Yankee over the Britain.

There is an indication of the extent to which shorthand prevails in this country in the statistical report that during the year ending June 30, 1890 [illegible] persons received instructions in stenography in the various schools of the United States.

Dominick O'Malley, the president of the Columbian Athletic club, has decided to give up the contest in the courts for the establishment of the institution at Roby, Ind., and to locate it at New Orleans. Indiana is glad to get rid of this tough gang.

The United States stamped envelopes works at Hartford, Conn., which have been running seven hours a day for the last two months, opened Monday on full time and will turn out 1,000,000 envelopes a day. The demand for Columbian stamped envelopes has ceased.

Up to last Saturday night President Cleveland had filled 925 offices. According to an estimate this is less than one fourth of all the presidential offices at his disposal. The treasury department alone has [illegible] such appointments, but its list is larger than that of any other single department.

A Fiji Islands missionary reports that so successful have been the efforts put forth for the Fijians that 90 per cent. of the population are found in a place of worship on Sunday. In the Friendly Isles there are more than 30,000 church members, who give yearly $15,000 for religious purposes.

The banks of Fort Wayne, as will be seen by their reports which were published in The Sentinel, are solid, practical institutions. At the close of business on the 3d of this month there was in clean cash in the vaults of the four banks the sum of $[illegible] and the individual deposits subject to check were $[illegible]. This is indeed a creditable showing, in view of the financial depression which the country has just passed through.

A society called "The United Christian Mission," has been started in Europe. Its object is to send at least one clear gospel message into every home. This society is in a sense an outcome of the Evangelical Alliance conference in Florence. It has carried on its work in twelve different languages, has sent through the newspapers, and in other ways, [illegible] gospel messages into more than [illegible] homes.

It is not for the tickling of the palate but for drunkenness that the western Indian seeks fire water, and the worst drink that would produce the [illegible] he would rather have than the finest Bourbon. In the [illegible] of the process, by the [illegible] which it is asserted [illegible] which can in no way be distinguished from [illegible] india rubber, it is [illegible] by experts in the business [illegible] of the latter article. Benefits of Bacteria.

There seems to be no end to the discoveries that await us concerning bacteria and the relations of these microscopic organisms to the well being of man. Who would think that the peculiar flavors which characterize different kinds of brands of tobacco are due to the presence of bacteria? Yet that is the conclusion to which recent investigations by a German botanist lead. He has examined tobaccos, which had been procured from all parts of the world, and has found in it an abundance of micro-organisms, and upon cultivating the bacteria from a particular kind of tobacco and then inoculating another kind with this culture, he has produced in it the taste and aroma of the original. Wines have already been improved by a similar process.

The great moral city of the great west is to be Newberg, Ore. The city council passed an ordinance a few days ago forbidding any person under the age of eighteen to wander about the town after seven p. m. between November and April, and after eight p. m. during the rest of the year, unless bearing a written permit from, or being in company with, parents or guardians. The penalty is to be a fine of not less than five dollars nor more than twenty dollars, or imprisonment for not less than two nor more than twenty days.

Travelers southward reach the candied sweet potato region in southern Virginia or northern North Carolina, and when a tenderfoot has once been [illegible] this product of [illegible] it usually becomes fond of it. The potatoes are first boiled and then, having been sliced, are fried, with the addition of considerable sugar. When properly cooked the slices are almost like translucent amber. The sweet potato pie is another form in which southern cooks prepare the sweet potato. It corresponds to the pumpkin pie of New England.

There are some curious manifestations of conservatism in this progressive country. The same conventional cuts of a cow, a horse, a steamboat and other objects that adorned newspaper advertising columns fifty years ago are still seen in some newspapers of Philadelphia and Baltimore, and half the butchers' account books in this country still bear a rude engraving of a fat British butcher in high beaver hat standing beside an ox. It must be nearly a century since there were any such butchers in the United States.

There are four millionaires in the present house—Stephenson, of Michigan, Sibley and Hopkins, of Pennsylvania, and Newlands, of Nevada. Other rich men in the house are Sickles and Belden, of New York, Harter and Storer, of Ohio, and Dalzell, of Pennsylvania.

The editor of a Georgia paper remarks that "the first good citizen bringing the office a 'possum will receive in return a notice that a defeated candidate would carry if referred to his successful rival—we'll speak of your public spirit, patriotism, generous disposition and how you are loved by your fellow countrymen. PEOPLE WELL KNOWN

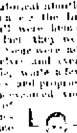
HOW THEY LOOKED WHEN THEY WERE YOUNG.

Chauncey Depew Was Spanked Regularly, Bob Ingersoll, the Good Nature, Everybody Thought, Was Sure to Become a Preacher—Gen. Porter and Others.

[illegible]

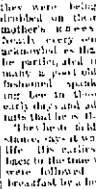
HAT [illegible] Chauncey Depew look like when he was a boy? This question is often asked by inquisitive folks and is applicable to all we [illegible] [illegible] natural life. For the edification of those interested in this subject it may be said that in spite of the present dignity of an lingering [illegible] oratorical abilities of a Depew and scores of the lines of prominent men, all were born in [illegible] so. In fact they were just like other boys. Some were addicted to getting themselves and every one else into trouble, while a few were models of goodness and propriety.

Among the excessive youth of these men some of the proprieties which have made them famous in later years were unperceptible at the time they were being drubbed on their mother's knees. Nearly every one acknowledges that he participated in many a good old-fashioned spanking in those early days and admits that he is the better for it.



CHAUNCEY DEPEW, [illegible]

Chauncey Mitchell Depew, for instance, says it was part of his daily life. His earliest recollections date back to the time when family prayers were followed by breakfast, and breakfast by a hearty spanking, with two objects in view. In the first place it was sought to impress upon his youthful mind what his relative position in his father's household was and secondly, to imbue him with the idea that all flesh was grass. And he says it usually was, after the operation was over. It acted, thirdly, as a good digester, and in those days the doctor never felt the need of a cordial after a hearty meal.

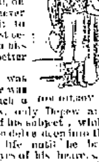


INGERSOLL AS A BABY.

Many a day during his early years found young Chauncey Depew proclaiming patriotic sentiments to an audience of admiring youngsters from the pinnacle of a pine stump up in the woods back of Peekskill.

It is doubtful if Mr. Depew has since had, or ever will have, more appreciative listeners than those in the Peekskill woods. He was a born leader among his fellows and was able to put up a good fight with rebellious subjects; he usually banked heavier on his power to sway them with his voice. He was able to cast a marble with the best of them, and a few years later used to go in swimming with his clothes on on an average of five times a day. Sundays he went to church and usually had to submit to an extra spanking in the afternoon because it was Sunday.

The proudest moment of his youth, Dr. Depew thinks, was the day he wore his first pair of boots. They had red tops and copper toes, and even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like Chauncey. Added to this was a pair of suspenders, and Chauncey nearly caught his death of cold by leaving off his coat in order to better display the glories of his first decoration.

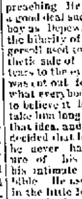


ROB INGERSOLL AT 6.

Bob Ingersoll, on the contrary, never had to submit to infantile chastisement, and he thinks he is all the better for it.

Bob's forte was preaching. He was a good deal such a boy as Depew, only Depew aroused the hilarity of his subject, while Ingersoll used to delve deep into the pathetic side of life until he brought tears to the eyes of his hearers. Bob was cut out for a preacher. That's what everybody said, until he began to believe it himself, but it did not take him long to disabuse his mind of that idea, and finally young Ingersoll decided that he was no preacher, and he never has been. Another feature of his early existence was his intimate acquaintance with the bible. He used to catch the preacher in the little Iowa town where he lived and mix the poor old gentleman upon biblical questions until the poor old dominie was not even sure that he was living. At the age of 7 Bob's head was abnormally large, and even then was full of good things in an undeveloped state, of which the world has since had the benefit.

The supreme moment of Mr. Ingersoll's life was when he fell in love at the age of 6. The object of his affections was a diminutive tot a year his junior, and Chauncey's boots paled into insignificance beside Bob's infantile "mash." She possessed great brown eyes that enthralled little Bob, and made the world for a radius of several rods seem like the Garden of Eden. Even then Bob thought the Garden of Eden was only a bright spot in a big rolling prairie on the edge of the Mesopotamia, but it did not amount to much in comparison with the circle radiated by the dark eyed young woman in short frocks.



HENRY GEORGE AT 6.

Mayor Gilroy's youth was spent in County Mayo, in the west of Ireland, and there wasn't a boy in those parts that ever [illegible] a bargain with him that he didn't get beat at it [illegible] and square. Tom was a terror. He was always ready for anything as brave as a young lion, and no boy was too big or ferocious for him to tackle. He got his share of spanking in those early days, too, but says he rather [illegible] a [illegible] of a [illegible] at the age of [illegible] and [illegible] set up [illegible] [illegible] he went to [illegible] Nobody [illegible] cared [illegible] to play, but he was sharp and when any one undertook to [illegible] him, the boys were easily [illegible] wanted.

GEN. PORTER AT [illegible]

Horace Porter was [illegible] later [illegible] always [illegible] with marbles and [illegible] knives that he had gained in speculation. He was not noted as a brilliant boy, but rather as a methodical, studious lad. He was a ha'penny and it soon grew to a shilling, and from that on.

Gen. Horace Porter had aspirations to be a dude. He was popular among the soldiers [illegible] as if and [illegible] all liked him. He was so pretty that everybody wanted to kiss him, and [illegible] water to a duck to the rest. His genius was not especially marked in any particular, but principles of uprightness and square dealing were at an early age distilled into his mind. He objected to going barefoot and always wore [illegible] clothes. Young Horace's early life was uneventful, but from a somewhat sentimental youth he developed into a strong minded man.

LINCOLN IN SCOTLAND

The American Liberator Remembered by Scotch-Americans.

[Special Correspondence.]

The monument of Abraham Lincoln recently erected in Edinburgh, Scotland, by Scottish-American soldiers evidences the truth of the saying that great men belong to no single country. The making of the statue came about in a curious way. A Scotchman named McEwen, who had fought in the American war, died in 1891, and was buried in a pauper's grave in one of the Edinburgh cemeteries. On the following Sunday, when the widow went with her "bairns" to place flowers upon the grave, she found that it had already been desecrated by having another body placed in it. The story suggested to Consul Wallace Bruce the idea of securing a burial place in Edinburgh for Scottish - American veterans. Americans in Scotland were much interested in the project, and a site was soon selected and marked by the Lincoln monument, which represents the martyred President freeing the slaves. The monument is fifteen feet in height and the bronze figure is of life size. George E. Bissell was the sculptor, and the entire cost was about $6,000.

Why the Bostons Won the Pennant.

The Bostons are receiving credit for working a new wrinkle in the way of fielding. Under the ordinary method of play a man who makes a safe hit runs half way down to second after rounding first base. The outfielder who gets the ball always throws it to second. The Boston outfielders have just reversed this play. When the base runner starts toward second McCarthy, Duffy or Carroll, whichever gets the ball, throws like a shot to first base and generally comes very near catching the runner off that base. The trick is more easily and successfully worked from right and short centerfield.

Sporting Notes.

Manager Sales has made terms with the Boston directors for next season.

Charles E. Courtney, the Cornell coach, will sign a three-year contract to coach the Harvard crew.

The Buffalo club has sold pitcher Fisher to the Cleveland club.

Edward Hanlon announces that he has permanently retired from active aquatics, but will back Stansbury for $1,000 against Gaudaur.

Bandits Rob a Farmer.

Just before dark, as Daniel Helvie, a farmer, was driving to his home, five miles from Logansport, Ind., the other evening, two masked highwaymen sprang up at the edge of the road and commanded him, upon pain of death, to alight from his wagon. Two revolvers were pointed at Helvie's head and he obeyed. His hands were ordered up and the highwaymen searched the farmer's pockets, securing about $10. The deed was done in daylight and in a thickly settled neighborhood. After relieving Helvie he was ordered to mount his wagon and proceed. Alarm was given but no trace of the robbers was found. Great excitement exists in the neighborhood, many believing that the highwaymen were none other than the men who recently robbed the express train near Kendallville.

The Mayor a Murderer.

Mayor John Loughran of Hot Springs, Ark., has been arrested charged with the shooting of James Rainey, private secretary of President J. D. Richardson of the Hot Springs railroad. The bullet was intended for Alderman W. J. Cripps, who has been active in the prosecution of Loughran for embezzlement. Cripps was standing near Rainey at the time and narrowly escaped death. Loughran was arrested several days ago, charged with embezzling $[illegible], on information furnished by the investigating committee of the city council, of which Cripps was chairman. The feeling against Loughran is very bitter and there is strong talk of lynching.

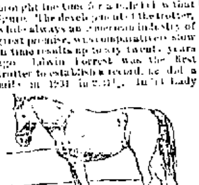
HE TWO MINUTE [illegible] is no longer a [illegible] part of the dim future. Its day is coming upon us almost as rapidly as the records have been going up the scale in the past few years. The development of marvels [illegible] especially in the last three years, has [illegible] us off our feet with a [illegible] and left us ready to expect and believe the trotting horse capable of reaching almost any figure. The days when 2:30 was considered by many the limit of the trotter's speed are only within recollection, but all calculations were, to borrow a bit of appropriate slang, knocked silly when the great Maud S. brought the time for a mile [illegible] what figure. The development of the trotter, while always an American industry of great promise, was comparatively slow in time results up to sixty twenty years ago. Edwin Forrest was the first trotter to establish a record; he did a mile in 1831 in 2:31½. In [illegible] Lady



ORMONDE.

Suffolk made the figure 2:26½, and here they practically remained with slight changes till old Dexter, a dear remembrance of our school-boy days—became a household by word by trotting in 2:17¼ in 1867. The trotting record table may indeed be divided into about five great epochs, led by as many great trotters. Dexter was superseded by Goldsmith Maid, the famous mare which clipped over three seconds off the record, and in '74 brought it down to 2:14. Rarus, in '78, made it still better, trotting in 2:13¼, and a year later, in '79, St. Julien marked up 2:12¾ on the record table. After him came the great and only Maud S., the first to get below the 2:10 mark, and open the eyes of horsemen the world over by her, at that day, remarkable record of 2:08 and a fraction. From that day to this the record has been getting nearer and nearer the 2-minute mark by fractions of a second, and Nancy Hanks, Directum, Sunol and Stamboul have shown the world the possibilities in the highest development of the trotter. And these four great trotters are yet in their prime. What may we not expect from them in the present or next season? And which one of them shall first reach the 2-minute pail? At the present time Nancy Hanks occupies the premier position by the fact of her having done a mile last September against time at Terre Haute, Ind., in 2:04, and by her grand work at Fleetwood park last week, when she trotted the mile in 2:06¼ on a course that could not by any means be called fast, and again by her 2:04½ at Washington park, Chicago.

The track at Terre Haute is said to be the fastest in existence, and 2:04 on that does not seem so wonderful a performance as 2:06¼ on the less modern one at Fleetwood.

Following the "Queen's" great work came Directum's two efforts to lower Nancy Hank's colors; but though the attempts were unsuccessful in so far as concerned the mare's glory, both resulted in the best work ever seen by a 4-year-old stallion, the first recording 2:05¼, and the second 2:07. The latter was the more remarkable because of its being only a few days after the first effort, and because the half mile was trotted in the unprecedented time of 1:01¼—the world's record. There is no doubt if Directum had been on the Terre Haute track on the day he did 2:07, his grand form would have made a performance equal to the "queen's" more than probable. As it was, he broke all existing stallion records, and was but a quarter second behind Nancy Hank's mile on the same track a few days before. Directum is so young that it looks as if the chances to eclipse Nancy Hanks' good time were good, especially since their work at Fleetwood shows them to be very near together.

As Nancy Hanks rules to-day queen of the trotting track, so Domino, Mr. James R. Keene's great racer holds a lordly sway over the runners. He has placed to his credit the Futurity, which is the most enviable racing prize of the year, and he won it too in good company, for Dobbins pressed him so closely that his owner believed him the faster horse, and a match for $25,000 was the result. A more thrilling race than this was never run—a reminder of the Salvator-Tenny days, but Domino and Dobbins made a more exciting contest of it than the other two, and ran it out to a dead-heat of on a terrific drive, in which Domino led all the way, until just at the wire honest, steady Dobbins caught him.

It was a game race throughout and again stamped the youngsters the greatest 2-year-olds of the season.

Domino's winnings this year have been large and include $[illegible] at the Brooklyn Jockey club's track, $[illegible] at Morris park, $[illegible] at Sheepshead Bay, $[illegible] at Washington Park, Chicago, $[illegible] at Monmouth Park, and the Futurity stakes of $50,000. In all approximately $[illegible]—rather a neat sum for one season's earning.

But, after all is said and done, where shall we look for such another as the unbeaten Ormonde, the grandest horse that lives?

His pedigree tells the story without any rhetorical ornamentation. Ormonde needs no side lecturer to point out his good points; it is only necessary to see him to realize that you have never seen a horse until you have looked upon one.

The famous English racer arrived in this country a few weeks ago having been purchased by Mr. W. O. B. Macdonough for $1[illegible] and after a rest went directly to his owner's ranch in DOMINO.

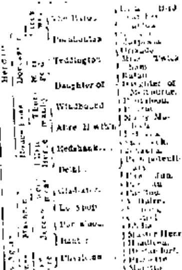
PEDIGREE OF ORMONDE.



California. Ormonde is a bay, with only a small white patch, which the stable would cover. He began his racing career as a 2-year-old. His record is one succession of victories. Probably no horse ever lived that won so many times in proportion to the number of starts, or earned so much money for his owner.

She Wore It to School.

"My new jacket, of which I am really proud," said a Fort Wayne lady, "was a coat I used to wear to school years ago. It was large and of good quality, but very rusty and faded. A dip into Diamond Dyes transformed it to the stylish seal-brown jacket I am now wearing. It requires but little skill to use Diamond Dyes, for every package contains simple and explicit directions, so that even a child can use these dyes with success."

An Unscientific Guard.

An eastern man was strolling through the wooded island.

"My friend," he drawled, as he poked his cane into a bunch of flowers, "does this plant here belong to the arbutus family?"

"No, sar," replied the guard, "dar is some deception ved Medvae, an' fite fakes on side, but every tang har belong to Vorld's Far."

Absent Minded.

The two most absent-minded men on record are the fellow who thought he had left his watch at home and then took it out to see if he had time to go back and get it and the man who put on his office door a card saying, "Out; will be back soon," and on his return sat down on a stair step to wait for himself.

They Give Their Reasons.

Perhaps some of our readers would like to know in what respect Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is better than any other, we will tell you. When this remedy is taken as soon as a cold has been contracted, and before it has become settled in the system, it will counteract the effect of the cold and greatly lessen it's severity, and it is the only remedy that will do this. It acts in perfect harmony with nature and aids nature in relieving the lungs, opening the secretions, liquefying the mucus and causing its expulsion from the air cells of the lungs and restoring the system to a strong and healthy condition. No other remedy in the market possesses these remarkable properties. No other will cure a cold so quickly. For sale by druggists.

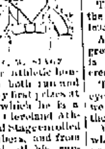
SPRINTER STAGE.

A Fleet-footed Athlete with a Great Running Record.

C. W. Stage, the clever sprinter of the Cleveland Athletic club, whose remarkable performance at the games of the Central Athletic association has attracted great attention in amateur athletic circles, has long enjoyed the reputation of being the fastest runner in northern Ohio at short distances.



C. W. STAGE.

Stage was born at Painesville, Ohio, and is of excellent family. At school he was the recognized runner in attendance, and his ability to make marvellous time at short distances made him a prominent factor in all athletic events. When he entered college he became a leading contestant for athletic honors, and his ability to both run and jump won for him many first places at Adelbert college, of which he is a graduate. When the Cleveland Athletic club was organized Stage enrolled as one of the first members, and from that time on he did all his running under the colors of that organization. In 1892 his health was poor, and he did not make as good a reputation in athletic events as he had hoped. He participated in field games at Pittsburg and won with ease in the 100 yards. At the first field day of the Cleveland Athletic club, held in Cleveland, he was defeated by Jewett, the crack runner of the Detroit Athletic club, by less than a yard. Jewett ran in 9 4-5 to beat Stage, but the record was not allowed because of the alleged favorable weather conditions for the contest. Stage [illegible] in the games of the Manhattan Athletic club in 1892, and although he secured a place in the trials he won nothing in the finals because he was ill during nearly all his stay in New York. He is about 5 feet tall and quite slender. He is the picture of a model sprinter when at work on the track, and expert trainers say his movement is the most perfect of any sprinter that ever raced in the United States. He runs upright on his toes, and with arms very stiff at his side. Stage is now a resident of Cleveland, and is studying law at the law school of the Western Reserve university. He holds all the Ohio collegiate championships and all the records for running and jumping.

IMMENSE TRAFFIC.

A New Record for Passenger Travel In Past Three Days.

Railways Pushed to Their Limit to Carry the Hundreds of Thousands of People.

Never in the history of railroading has passenger traffic been so heavy to and from Chicago as during the past three days. The passenger equipment of every railroad entering that city has been inadequate to handle the hundreds of thousands of people landed in the world's fair city, while the trainmen, engineers and firemen have been compelled to do double duty. Sunday morning a dozen or more No. 2s left this city over the Pennsylvania and in less than twelve hours the crews were back on sections of No. 8. The side tracks at Chicago were crowded with passenger cars and freight tracks were used for passenger trains. Railroad men report that the traffic on every other railroad entering Chicago is almost equal to that of the Pennsylvania and say that it is impossible to estimate the number of passengers carried, although it will run into the hundreds of thousands. The traffic westbound today was very heavy and the visitors will almost outnumber Chicagoians in attendance at the Chicago day exercises at the world's fair. The record of passenger travel was made in the past seventy-two hours.

ONE ON MCCARTY.

Last evening as Engineer Dennis McCarty was nearing an overhead bridge about four miles west of Fort Wayne he made the discovery that it was on fire. He stopped at Dunfee and sent a message to yardmaster Lou Watkins, who spread the news, which spread like wildfire through the yard.

The entire force of car inspectors, switchmen and round house men procured buckets and Lou Watkins had a large hose, which he intended to couple on to the tender and throw water with terrible force, almost hard enough to tear the bridge to pieces. Engineer Sims, who runs the night yard engine, pulled them to the bridge. After messages had been sent to clear the track for him he ran the four miles in three and one-half minutes and some of the boys were pretty badly shaken up over their fast ride. As they neared the fire they could see the blaze shining brightly and all hands were anxious to go to work and stop the fire. Lou Watkins thought it would just take about five minutes to quench it with the large hose. But when they pulled up and stopped at the bridge they were surprised to see that the bridge was not on fire at all. Engineer McCarty had been mistaken and sent in a false alarm. The fire was only one a poor tramp had lighted to warm himself by. He was almost scared to death when the yard engine stopped near him. The fire was put out and the tramp was brought back with the party. Maybe they did not swear vengeance on McCarty.

NICKEL PLATE FREIGHT WRECK.

A rear end collision occurred on the Nickel Plate railway early this morning at the Glasgow avenue crossing just east of the city. Freight train No. 45, two sections, west bound, had received orders to wait on the Glasgow avenue side track for east bound freight No. 42. The first section of No. 39 came west at the rate of about twenty miles an hour, with Engineer Dan McFee at the throttle. The train did not have orders to meet No. 42, and as there is a big curve at this point the engineer failed to see the two sections of No. 35 on the side track until he was almost upon them. He reversed the throttle, and, with his fireman, Sam Strayer, jumped in time to save both men's lives. The engine struck the caboose of second 35 and completely telescoped it. Conductor Bush was in the caboose, but saw the approaching train and jumped in time to escape injury. One car was entirely demolished and the drawbars on fifteen others broken. The second section of 35 bumped into the first section. Several car loads of grapes were uninjured. The wreck did not interfere with traffic.

RAIL NOTES.

The Nickel Plate trains west last night were several hours late.

The last excursion over the Wabash for the far west will leave Fort Wayne tomorrow.

Pennsylvania Brakeman A. D. Craig, his wife and daughter, Della, are spending this week at the world's fair.

The Lake Shore railroad will carry a large number of Fort Wayne passengers to the Waterloo fair this week.

Fred W. Gardiner, ticket agent of the Nickel Plate in Fort Wayne is doing Chicago day at the world's fair.

The Burlington railway yesterday unloaded 161 coaches and forty-three sleepers at the Pennsylvania depot in Chicago.

Ed Gaffney, formerly in the Pittsburg shops, left for St. Louis last night where he has accepted a position in the railway shops.

Will Nozer, of the Pittsburg shops is camped out on the Maumee with a number of friends. The party spends a big portion of the time sitting.

Wabash train No. 17 was several hours late last night. The delay was caused by a wait at Toledo for connections with the Lake Shore train from the east.

Mr. S. D. Melcheimer, editor of this department of THE SENTINEL, and wife, are at the world's fair. Mr. Melcheimer's absence will account for any defect in the news of this department.

It is reported that the Rank locomotive syndicate may purchase the Diamond plate glass factory buildings, at Elwood, and convert them to the purposes of locomotive making.

There were three sections of Pennsylvania train No. 25 into Fort Wayne this morning. A fourth section was made up and sent to Columbia City to carry passengers from that place and intermediate points to the world's fair.

M. E. Griffith, a brakeman on the Pittsburg, had his hand badly mashed Saturday evening while attempting to couple cars near Manchester, Ohio. He was brought to his home in this city, No. 52 Charles street, where Dr. C. B. Stemen attended him.

The Baltimore and Ohio telegraphers at Baltimore have taken a poll among themselves and all, with the exception of three, voted not to accept any cut in salary. They say that in other cities a similar feeling exists. General Manager O'Dell has gone to Chicago.

Saturday three Pennsylvania conductors stepped into the Chicago telegraph office to get orders. When they attempted to leave the office the door was blocked with people and they were compelled to climb out back windows and take a roundabout way to their trains.

Saturday evening sixteen machinery moulders at the Bass foundry were laid off. This makes a total of twenty-six men laid off in this department during the past few weeks. It is announced, however, that this cut in force is only temporary, and that the men will be reinstated in the course of a month. The other departments of the foundry are rushed with work.

That the Pennsylvania lines have done their full share of the world's fair business is evidenced in the following figures, which include their world's fair business from September 24 to October 2, not including local business. September 24 and 25 the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago and Panhandle landed in Chicago 15,721 world's fair passengers; September 26, 6,188; September 27, 1,968; September 28, 4,696; September 29, 6,788; October 1, 6,766; October 2, 7,462, making a total of 58,875 passengers delivered at Chicago during the period named.

In the case of the state of Texas against Martin Mere, Judge Brashear in Huston ruled that the anti-scalper law, recently effective in Texas, is unconstitutional. He discharged Mere, who was charged with violation of the law. If the decision stands it will be a great relief to northern railway men who have been compelled to stamp all tickets sold to Texas points on the back with a long notice to the passenger, warning him not to sell any unused portion of the ticket, but if he does not use it to return it to an agent of the railway company issuing it, who, by the law, is compelled to return the value of the unused portion of the ticket.

SUNDAY BASE BALL.

Dr. Eldridge Speaks of It in His Sermon—Prof. Brannon at Y. M. C. A.

The quarterly communion services at the Wayne street M. E. church yesterday morning were largely attended and were of an interesting character. In his sermon Dr. Eldridge spoke briefly of the object of these sacraments of the church and said they should be observed, if for no other reason, because Christ commanded it. They perpetuate a beautiful and beneficial custom and bring to us a fresh realization of Christ's mission here on earth and what He did for us, bringing salvation to all.

In the course of his sermon, while speaking incidentally on the observance of God's commands, he paid his respects to Sunday base ball. For two weeks past, he said, the street cars running along our busy thoroughfares have had great white streamers tacked on either end of them advertising a Sunday game of base ball. It impressed me, he continued, as being a pretty low standard of morality. The doctor spoke in strong terms against the desecration of the Sabbath. His sermon, although brief, was a magnificent one, and at its close the altar was repeatedly surrounded with the large number of communicants of the church.

The services at the City Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon were conducted by William Kyburz, the assistant secretary of the association. Prof. M. A. Brannon, of the Central Grammar school delivered the address. Everyone, he said, should have a mission in this life, and that mission should be above and beyond the business or vocation in which he is engaged for a livelihood. He should have an object to gain, a goal which he is seeking to reach, a purpose that would result in the betterment of the condition of those around him. Such a mission Christianity furnished and he urged that it be obtained, not alone for the promises which it offered, but that it made life nobler, grander, better and carried its blessings to those about us.

QUITS HIS PULPIT IN A HURRY.

Rev. Luckey Resigns Without Pronouncing a Benediction.

CROWN POINT, Ind., Oct. 9.—The members of the Presbyterian church of this city are without a pastor and in a manner which has shocked the members and created a sensation in the town. Rev. L. W. A. Luckey, who has had charge of the congregation more than four years, and is a man of unquestionable ability and learning, quit his pulpit yesterday in an undignified manner. After having delivered a sermon he had a few remarks to make and before his congregation had the least intimation of what was to follow, he said suddenly: "I hereby tender my resignation," seized his hat, hurried down the aisle and out of the church. His wife, who sings in the choir, quickly followed him. The benediction not having been pronounced, the congregation still remained seated until a member arose and dismissed the congregation. These strange actions of the pastor are inexplicable, and no reasons are advanced by anyone. Rev. Luckey is a man who had made many warm friends during his stay here. At no time since he has had charge here has he failed to stand at the door of the church after dismissing the congregation and shake hands with each member, but yesterday his flock was denied the pleasure of his usual shake and passed from the church an amazed and embarrassed people.

ROBERTS WINS.

The Englishman Beats Ives in the Last Series.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The eleventh and last series of the 10,000 points billiard match between John Roberts, jr., the English champion, and Francis C. Ives, of Chicago, America's champion, began Saturday night in the Lenox lyceum. The score at the end of the afternoon game stood: Roberts, 9,001; Ives, 8,101. Saturday night's play was marked by no especially large runs. Roberts held his lead and ran out his necessary 10,000 points at 10:55 o'clock. Ives' score was 8,[illegible] After Roberts had won the spectators cheered him long and loudly. Ives took his defeat in good part.

wife, and in case of his death she would receive the sum of about $10,000. Some months later Palzek disappeared under mysterious circumstances from his usual haunts in Chicago.

After a couple of weeks a bloated floater was found drifting about in the lake near Lincoln park, which was finally identified by Mrs. Palzek as the remains of her husband. [illegible] Mrs. Palzek now sought to obtain the life insurance due her from the various societies to which Palzek had belonged. [illegible] Odd Fellows' society, [illegible] Palzek [illegible]

Mrs. Palzek brought suit against the different benefit associations, and the matter was fought in the courts for nearly two years.

Jack Branson had never given up the idea that Palzek was still alive, and was ever alert to obtain clews to strengthen that belief. He saw a little item in a Minneapolis paper giving account of a man named Keiner, said to be a Polish Jew, whose place of business had been burned. He went to Minneapolis and spent a week hunting for the man Keiner. In fact, hunted up every Polish Jew in the city, none of whom answered Palzek's description. Keiner had obtained the insurance for the fire mentioned and had then disappeared.

Branson went to St. Paul and obtained information about a Mrs. Max Jerrish, whose husband had shot and attempted to kill her some months previously. He called upon the lady and learned that she had married a Polish Jew at St. Cloud, Minn. They had removed to St. Paul and for a year or so her husband had done business both in Minneapolis and St. Paul. She stated that Jerrish had returned to St. Paul from one of his trips a couple of months before, became very jealous of his wife, and during a family row had shot her through the lungs. She came near dying, but had recovered. Jerrish was arrested and tried for assault to murder, and had been sentenced to the penitentiary for five years.

Branson went to Stillwater and visited the prison to see Max Jerrish. The prisoner was brought into the center of the room, directly beneath an electric light, and when faced about so that Branson could see his face the Chicago man exclaimed, "Well, I'll be d——d if that ain't Ignatz Palzek come to life again!"

The convict gave a frightened look at Branson and turning deadly pale grasped the back of a chair for support, and finally sank into the seat buried his face in his hands. He would not talk to Branson, refused any explanation [illegible]

WOMAN'S WORLD IN [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] would have [illegible] This year the prize has been won by Miss Agnes Clerke, England's most learned woman astronomer. Miss Clerke is a young woman who lives at South Kensington very quietly and studies the stars. She had no school training in astronomy, but studied privately, yet she has written an able paper on "the Chemistry of the Stars," and has published a book, "Popular History of Astronomy In the Nineteenth Century," that has passed through three editions. "I have loved the stars from my earliest years," she says.

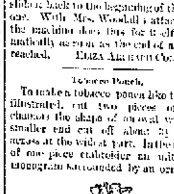
Mrs. Logan says—and womanlike she prefaces her remarks with "I feel"—"I feel that the greatest opportunities women have ever had to advance themselves or their interests have been only half improved because of envy, jealousy and personal ambition." Yes, but the same is exactly as true of men. Both sexes are a sight and fail of their highest possibilities because of envy, jealousy and bad temper.

What do you think of the following hint from Miss Sarah Grand, author of the famous English novel, "The Heavenly Twins?" "If good women will combine in demanding good husbands, a supply will eventually arise to meet the demand."

Mrs. A. H. Woodall of Washington has invented a most useful attachment to the typewriting machine. It is a device which renders it no longer necessary for the typewriting operator to lift the carriage after a line is finished and slide it back to the beginning of the next one. With Mrs. Woodall's attachment the machine does this for itself automatically as soon as the end of a line is reached. ELIZA ARCHARD CONNER.

Tobacco Pouch.

To make a tobacco pouch like the one illustrated, cut two pieces of fine chamois the shape of an oval with the smaller end cut off about 3½ inches across at the widest part. In the middle of one piece embroider an initial or monogram surrounded by an ornamental design.



Stitch the curved edges of the pieces together in a narrow seam to form the bag, and around the top sew a strip of soft silk 4 inches wide. This is to be doubled over and faced down on the inside of the pouch so as to cover the top edge of the chamois. Half an inch below the top of the silk put two rows of stitching, between which run double drawing strings of No. 1 ribbon to match the silk.

BARBARA PRESTON.

A New Thing.

They had come in from a long walk, through several buildings, an old man and his patient wife. And they were comparing notes about the sights they had seen.

"Emily," he said, "there's one thing we've passed a good many times today that I'd like to see. I kept thinking maybe you'd see it and say something about it first, because you always say that I am kind o' flighty."

"What was it, pa?" asked the kind looking old mother.

"The Exit," said the old gentleman, clearing his throat. "I've seen it on doors and gates, and I reckon it must be something new."

A LUCKY YOUNG MAN.

Fortune Has Been Very Kind to Oliver Ames, Second.

One of the luckiest of lucky men, if wealth is a blessing, is young Oliver Ames of Boston—Oliver Ames, second, as he is called to distinguish him from his uncle Oliver, ex-governor of Massachusetts, who in his day was known as Oliver, Jr., in distinction from the original Oliver, the blacksmith and founder of the fortunes of the family. Oliver, second, is a son of the late Frederick L. Ames, and on the death of his father succeeded to the control of one of the immense fortunes of the day. A fond grandfather had previously left him considerable money, and his career is a verification of the Scriptural text, "To him that hath shall be given."

He is young and handsome of figure and face and very fond of the good things of life, having leisure and surrounding himself with pretty things. He might have been an athlete while at college (he is a Harvard graduate), as he might have been several other things, for he is conceded to have a versatile ability, but he didn't go in for that sort of thing and was contented to be [illegible] He had the reputation of a good fellow, though, and belonged to the Hasty Pudding and Porcelain

When he got to the door, he suddenly paused, then he came back.

"Excuse me," he said, "but you forgot to fill up the check. You have not written the date, nor the amount, nor have you signed your name."

"Oh," said the editor, "that is all right. You see, I have given you a check in its rough state, just as you gave me your poem. [illegible]"

Many of the most prominent men of the country speak with pride of attending and graduating from Williams College.

We might compare their pride with the pride of a man who has just bought his first suit from us. You may think it a ridiculous comparison, but often it is clothes that make the man, and we can do that part of it to perfection.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

Dr. Curtis, of Indianapolis, Preached Yesterday.

The services in the new Congregational church yesterday were of a specially interesting character. The Rev. Dr. Curtis, of Indianapolis, preached an able sermon in the morning from the text, "Because I live, ye shall live also." Helen Mary, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ainslie, was baptized, and Mr. B. M. Stopher was ordained as deacon of the church. Mr. Paul Mossman, the newly elected superintendent of the Sunday school, took hold of his new duties with vigor, and the prospects of the school are bright. The pastor, Rev. J. S Ainslie, preached in the evening. Fine audiences were present and the outlook of this church is full of promise.

Dr Curtis said yesterday that in size, beauty and arrangement the new Congregational church is the grandest edifice he has ever seen for the money. He thought that it might have cost $10,000, whereas the structure and lot together cost $2700.
